For example, some adhesives are used to bond together surfaces of tires and/or belts that are disposed in a tire and/or belt assembly. Some adhesives can also be used to bond surfaces of components of an automobile or other vehicle. In general, different types of adhesives can be used to form different bonds between two surfaces. For example, a chemical adhesive can be used to bond together elastomer and/or metal surfaces, whereas an adhesive such as a tacky adhesive can be used to bond together two components (e.g., a component of an automobile). For example, the automobile industry utilizes tacky adhesives to bond together automotive components such as fabrics, trim components, and/or other components. Tacky adhesives have been used in the automotive industry to bond together body components such as fabrics, cloth, and/or other materials that are disposed in a vehicle. Tacky adhesives can be used, for example, to bond together parts
