"It is possible to negotiate a deal," said Mr Johnson, insisting he was more prepared than "some of the commentators, like (former Labour MP) Yvette Cooper, for the danger to Britain that would follow if the UK left without a deal", BBC News reports. Meanwhile, Labour MPs have published an open letter to Mr Johnson demanding he withdraw the Article 50 letter, as the party's leaders discuss how to best progress their proposals for the next stage of Brexit. After Friday's meeting with Mr Johnson, Mr Barclay says he "was able to reassure" the PM that "we can still get a deal". Mr Johnson also gave the BBC's Laura Kuenssberg the first glimpse of his Brexit message, which he said was "a very simple, clear argument" for leaving with a deal. Mr Johnson told the BBC that the EU had been the "same as it has been for the past 35 years" over Brexit. "It's about making a deal with Europe for a new, prosperous, free and open and strengthened British society."
