Even if you're not a designer, many of the tools in Photoshop are used by web designers. Some features are not easy to find in other image manipulation programs, such as the marquee selection tool and the ability to select a raster or vector image. Photoshop's current version, Photoshop CS5, adds some extra features, including a new 3D feature, a zooming feature, and some useful tools for web graphics. Creating a Raster Image with Photoshop Creating raster images in Photoshop is similar to creating a vector image, except that you don't work on a path; instead, you work on pixels. As a raster image, you can also change its color, opacity, and resolution as well as add text, shapes, and other vector elements to it. Photoshop CS5 uses the CMYK color space that includes cyan (C), magenta (M), yellow (Y), and black (K) colors. You can create a new document and create a new layer for any new raster image or you can use an existing layer. Figure 8-1 shows a new document ready for the first image. When you add a new layer, a new rectangle appears on your canvas, with a small section to the right of the rectangle representing the current layer. In Figure 8-1, the rectangle shows that the current layer has no content. To add content to the current layer, you must select the area to add the content to. Then you can click the plus sign (+) at the bottom-right corner of the layer to add content to it. Figure 8-1: A new document and an empty layer. You can also add content to the currently selected layer. You can add shapes such as circles, rectangles, and lines, or other objects such as text boxes. Figure 8-2 shows the Text tool (a pen with a large cross symbol) and a text box. The Text tool is used for adding text to the canvas, which is the image you're working on. The text box is used for arranging text in the selected area. Note that a text box is not a text box that just allows you to type a text string, as you might expect. Instead, it's a box that includes an editing function that you can control, as shown in Figure 8-2. You can place the box anywhere on the canvas by dragging it. You can select the text you want to

1. Field of the Invention The present invention relates to a lamp illuminating and light source apparatus, in particular to such a lamp illuminating and light source apparatus capable of protecting the lamp from damages caused by physical impacts. 2. Description of the Prior Art The power converter of the lamp illuminating and light source apparatus may fail to work, resulting in the lamp illuminating and light source apparatus is not operated. Therefore, the user may not know whether the lamp illuminating and light source apparatus is malfunctioning or not. If the lamp illuminating and light source apparatus is malfunctioning, the user may have to replace the lamp illuminating and light source apparatus, causing inconvenience to the user. To avoid the above-mentioned problems, a lamp illuminating and light source apparatus capable of detecting the state of the lamp illuminating and light source apparatus is developed. For example, U.S. Pat. No. 5,203,002 discloses a lighting system. In the '002 patent, a lamp illuminating and light source apparatus is mounted in a lamp holder and comprises a lamp, a lampholder and a light emitting diode (LED). A sensing circuit is mounted in the lampholder and comprises a light receiving sensor and a feedback circuit. The sensing circuit is connected to the light receiving sensor and controls the output power and direction of the LED. The light receiving sensor detects the intensity of the light and transmits the signal to the feedback circuit to control the output power and direction of the LED. A type of circuit is further provided in the feedback circuit to protect the circuit from damages caused by the impact of the lamp. The lamp illuminating and light source apparatus described above may protect the lamp illuminating and light source apparatus from damages caused by the impact of the lamp. However, the arrangement of the circuit and the sensor between the lamp illuminating and light source apparatus and the lamp is complex. The circuit and the sensor has different sizes and positions. Accordingly, when the lamp illuminating and light source apparatus is assembled, it is required to assemble the circuit and the sensor before assembling the lamp illuminating and light source apparatus, and to wire the circuit and the sensor in sequence. Therefore, the circuit and the sensor may be easily damaged during the assembling of the lamp illuminating and light source apparatus. Moreover, when the lamp illuminating and light source apparatus is used, the circuit and the sensor may be easily damaged by the impact caused by the shock of the users. The present invention relates to a heat exchanger provided in an air conditioner. More specifically, it relates to a heat exchanger

Cigarette smoking and the risk of leukemic transformation of chronic lymphocytic leukemia. Smoking cigarettes may alter the risk of developing lymphoproliferative neoplasms. Evidence comes from case reports or from observations in myelodysplastic syndromes but not in chronic lymphocytic leukemia. We prospectively studied 839 patients with chronic lymphocytic leukemia, including 351 never smokers, 371 former smokers, and 47 current smokers. The patients were followed for lymphocytic leukemia, with a median follow-up of 49 months. Relative risks were estimated as odds ratios by means of Cox proportional-hazards regression modeling. Current smokers were more likely than never and former smokers to be male (PJuliet Rix Juliet Rix (born 29 May 1962) is a British actress, known for playing the role of Jenny in the sitcom League of Gentlemen.
